

Member Interest Groups (MIGs)

www.campdenbri.co.uk/research/migs.php

Keep ahead by networking with colleagues at our regular interest group
meetings

What do MIGs do?

The MIGs provide a forum for over 1,000 industrialists with common interests. Each MIG meets 3 times per year to:

- bring together industry colleagues
- discuss topical industrial issues
- consider the impact of developing legislation
- select and steer research
- enjoy early access to research results
- develop members' professional skills

Which MIG should you join?

There are currently 12 MIGs. Their names reflect their interests - some are sector based whilst some are discipline based. More detailed information on the interests of each MIG, along with the minutes of meetings* and frequently asked questions* can be found at www.campdenbri.co.uk/research/migs.php

What does a meeting involve?

Typically, meetings start mid-morning and finish mid-afternoon with breaks for refreshments, lunch and chatting to other members. Each MIG is chaired by an industrial member and includes:

- Presentations by experts from industry, government and Campden BRI specialists
- Discussion of topical issues
- Brainstorming ideas to solve pre-competitive problem

MIGs on LinkedIn

Our MIGs LinkedIn group has been created exclusively for you to connect with each other outside of meetings. Please use the group to share information and knowledge, get to know each other better, and arrange to catch-up before or after MIG meetings.

If you are interested in joining, please contact migs@campdenbri.co.uk
