

Member Interest Groups (MIGs)

www.campdenbri.co.uk/research/migs.php

Keep ahead by networking with like-minded peers at our regular interest group meetings

What do members do?

The MIGs provide a forum for over 1,000 industrialists with common interests. Each meets 3 times per year to:

- network with industrialists and peers
- develop their professional skills
- discuss topical industrial issues
- select and steer research
- enjoy early access to research results
- consider the impact of developing legislation

Which MIG should you join?

There are currently 13 MIGs. Their names reflect their interests - some are sector based whilst some are discipline based. More detailed information on the interests of each MIG, along with the minutes of meetings* and frequently asked questions* can be found at www.campdenbri.co.uk/research/migs.php

Agri-Food Brewing and Fermented Alcoholic Beverages
Cereals, Milling and Baking Chilled and Frozen Foods
Food and Drink Science
Food Service
Heat Preserved Foods
Microbiology
Manufacturing Technologies
Meat and Poultry Packaging
Quality and Food Safety Management Sensory and Consumer

You will need your member username and password for this information.*

www.campdenbri.co.uk/research/migs.php

What does a meeting involve?

Typically, meetings start mid-morning and finish mid-afternoon with networking breaks for refreshments and lunch. Each MIG is chaired by an industrial member and includes:

- Presentations by experts from industry, Government and Campden BRI
- Discussion of topical issues
- Brainstorming ideas to solve pre-competitive problems

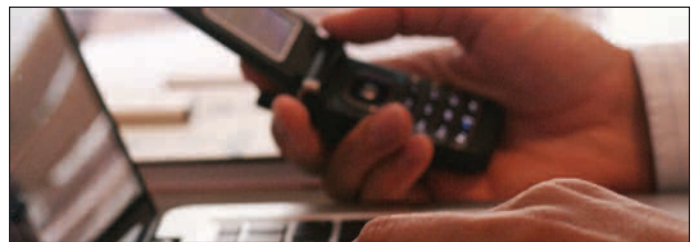

Find out more

To join a MIG or to discuss which groups are most appropriate for you and your company, please contact

richard.powell@campdenbri.co.uk +44(0)1386 842233

www.campdenbri.co.uk/research/migs.php

Campden BRI, Station Road, Chipping Campden, Gloucestershire, GL55 6LD, UK.

Wi-fi

Wifi is available for the convenience of all visitors to the Chipping Campden site. Please ask at reception for a Guest Pass. Any enquiries please email our training/membership team training@campdenbri.co.uk membership@campdenbri.co.uk